

YOUR HELP NEEDED

To Feed and Clothe 25,000 Orphans Under American Care in Armenia

While Arizona, well clothed and well fed, is enjoying the holiday season, the officials of the Near East Relief are reminding the people of the unhappy condition of more than 25,000 orphans, under American care, half way around the world, dependent upon the generosity of those more fortunate for the bare necessities of life.

For $5.00, which would hardly provide a meal on some tables in this country, a homeless, fatherless child in Armenia can be fed for a month, while $15.00 will feed, clothe and educate one of the little wards for that length of time, and it is to keep this work going through the coming winter that collections are now being made.

If all the refugee children cared for by the Near East Relief were seated at the same table, it would be 24 miles long, and new contributions are needed continually to fill that long line of plates. Winter is adding to the distress in Armenia and Syria, and the long table will become more and more crowded as the weather grows colder.

Although the assembly of the League of Nations now is working on some plan to relieve the political and economic condition of Armenia, it will be long before any re-organization can help the individual refugees, and those in charge of the Near East Relief point out that tens of thousands of children now being fed and clothed by American contributions will, if properly educated, in time become substantial citizens of the new Armenian republic.
